You Will Learn:

The current drug trends of adolescent and young adult drug use.

How the client is not addicted to a drug, but is addicted to "intoxication" and is dysregulated.

You will learn how systems participate in the illness and wellness

You will gain a sophisticated understanding regarding the role of Attachment and Interpersonal Neurobiology. This will illuminate the power of relationships in the etiology and treatment of this illness. This understanding will expand how you formulate your client's psychological structure, which will play out as a more informed treatment plan for all.

There is no separating the brain, mind and relationships. There is no separating the chemical dependency and the mental health.

Finally we will examine closely the role of the clinician working with the client and family to decrease denial and increase motivation for change!
